

Celebrate Good Neighbors!

National Good Neighbor Day, held each year in the U.S. on Sept. 28, celebrates the value of connecting with our neighbors and creating strong, healthy communities. Here are some fun ways to connect with your neighbors this year.

Spread Positivity

- Use chalk to write encouraging messages on sidewalks.
- Scatter small painted rocks with positive words throughout the neighborhood.
- Write a nice letter of encouragement or a sweet and simple message for your neighbors.

Pop by With a Gift

- Drop off some baked goods.
- Share veggies, a small plant or a bouquet of flowers from your garden.
- Include a short, handwritten note with your gift to make it even more special.

Host a Get-Together

- A themed block party, fall BBQ, potluck or progressive meal.
- A pet parade with prizes.
- An outdoor movie night.

Connect with Good Neighbors

Here are more ways to build your neighborhood community year round.

- Partner with a neighbor when renting specific tools for landscaping projects or common household needs.
- Create a neighborhood tool-sharing spreadsheet.
- Pair up with another parent to lead a Boy or Girl Scout troop, coach sports or volunteer at a church function.
- Help out when inclement weather strikes. Offer to plow snow, pick up debris and provide tools to help with clean-up efforts.
- Start a monthly club to share meals, discuss books, watch movies or play games. A regularly scheduled get-together will help promote deeper relationships.
- Encourage your neighbors to decorate for different holidays. Set a time for everyone to walk around and view the decorations. End the night with light refreshments at your home.
- Organize a group gift to honor significant life events, such as a new baby or the passing of a loved one.

Create a dedicated, neighborhood social media group. Share information or ask questions. Include a directory with contact information and share updates as needed.

In my 28 years of experience I have found that if you work hard, have fun, and are good to people you will make relationships that last a lifetime.

It is such a joy, pleasure and privilege to guide you on your journey.

"We met Kim in 2016 through a mutual friend. We weren't quite ready for a home purchase but Kim patiently kept in touch for 3 years as a genuine friend, not an associate, so she was the natural choice when we finally decided to try the plunge. In 5 years we have come to know and appreciate that Kim opens up her entire life to you just as you do to her, you don't see that much these days in anyone. There isn't a single trait about Kim the we can identify as her best because she's a such beautiful individual overall and it showed through every nanosecond of our time together. Kim always kept a cool head under pressure, made us feel like we are strongly represented and provided true support through the huge lows in our process and expressed authentic joy and warmth through the highs. No matter how much I type, it will never encompass how we feel about her and the depth in how she's changed our lives beyond being our realtor. And for that we will always love her."
